Dear Sir or Madam,

I would like to take a moment of your time to address the new broadcast service known as Low Power FM. As I am sure this service is beneficial for you, I am concerned about the possibility of losing the K-LOVE radio station due to LPFM stations taking precedence over FM translator stations.

Where I live in Texas there are various radio stations, one of those being K-LOVE. This station is very important to me. As a Christian and a wife of a deployed soldier, I depend on the support and encouragement of K-LOVE. It is one station I can listen to and not worry about what my children hear; I want them to listen and learn!

I am not alone in my desire to keep this station on the air. I live outside of Fort Hood. It is the largest military installation in the continental U.S. I know of countless spouses who listen to K-LOVE and rely on it for encouragement during the long separation from our loved ones. More than just military, there are many I have met who listen exclusively to K-LOVE. In this time of war in our world and uncertainty of our safety, I believe it is imperative to remind people of God's strength and security.

Thank you for taking your time to read my letter. I do hope that whatever course of action you choose to follow, the loss of K-LOVE is not a consequence.

Sincerely,
Amy Soupene
